Dear Guest,

It is a pleasure to welcome you to the "Monte Pacis" hospitality complex, located in the guest house of Pažaislis Monastery. The guest house was built by the monastery's founder, K. Z. Pacas, Grand Chancellor of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania, as a place for himself, his guests, and travelers to stay. In the 17th century, these quarters brought together the tranquility of the monastery, the life of the nobles of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania, and the bustle of guests and travelers.

Now in its fourteenth year, "Monte Pacis" proves that such a harmonious combination is possible even in the 21st century. We complement our magnificent history, spiritual surroundings, and the unique spirit of Pažaislis with warm hospitality and respect for you, our guest, offering responsible and professional service through memorable experiences, delicious food, and, of course, fine wine.

We are committed to fostering a culture of responsible and moderate consumption of wine and other beverages, encouraging our guests to pair them with food and offering wine - tasting experiences. As we continuously improve the selection in our wine cellar, we nurture long - standing relationships with winemakers while also establishing new partnerships.

Our long - standing direct partnerships with some of Europe's finest winemakers allow us to continuously expand our wine list. Today, in the cool cellars of Pažaislis Monastery, the "Monte Pacis" wine collection comprises more than 300 different wines. I particularly recommend exploring our selection of naturally sweet wines, as well as mature, aged, vintage, and wines from rare appellations. We also invite you to discover wines made by monks. At international wine competitions, judges evaluate not only the number of wines in a collection, but also its balance in terms of countries of origin, styles, maturity, and winemaking methods. Great importance is placed on the price - to-quality ratio, as well as on the individuality and distinctiveness of the wine list. In other words, its depth and substance. Equally important is the collaboration between the sommelier and the restaurant chef - particularly in food and wine pairing, wine - tasting experiences, and the selection of wines available by the glass.

Over the past few years, our collection has been enriched with organic, biodynamic, natural, non-alcoholic, orange, and Lithuanian wines. Our primary focus is on creating excellent pairings with expressive local cuisine based on seasonal Lithuanian produce and natural ingredients, presented by "Monte Pacis" restaurant chef Raimundas Dambrauskas.

I hope that the harmony of fine wine and food in the unique surroundings of "Monte Pacis" will give you a truly memorable experience, enrich your gastronomic knowledge, introduce you to new flavors, and create lasting impressions.

Sincerely,
Sommelier Indra Ramanauskienė

WINE FROM MONASTERIES

The history of good wines of Christian Europe is deeply connected with monastic life. Since the early Middle Ages community's paid homage to God through the splendor and finesse of their wines, as well as through their architecture, liturgical chanting and illuminated manuscripts. The numerous references to wine and the vine which punctuate the Bible are proof enough that a good wine is like a prayer in praise of God. In the following centuries, monks, faithful to the Rule of their founder, devoted themselves with unflagging courage to working in the fields, knowing that "they are truly monks if they live by the labor of their hands" (Rule of St Benedict). The vineyard became one of the most favored places of this labor, where the sons of St Benedict would invest the patience and ingenuity, of which they had been given the secret, to develop the lands entrusted to them to their full potential. Clos de Vougeot, Romanée - Conti, Châteauneuf – du - Pape, Tuscany, Trentino, and more others are just some of the unforgettable vineyards that were created by the monks.

"With our wines we wish to share with you the treasures of rural and monastic souls. In the wine glass, the innocence of farmers who are in touch with life's truths and the rhythm of nature sings together with the innocent spirit of the monks, who ceaselessly contemplate the Beauty of God. We desire our wines to be a journey to the peaks, from the visible to the Invisible."
(Dom Gerard, the founder of the Abbeys of Le Barroux)

Ubi caritas et amor, Deus ibi est - Where charity and love are present, God is also there. (Jean - Robert Pitte)

Abbaye Du Barroux – Via Caritatis

In 1309 Pope Clement V settled down permanently in South France. For his summer holiday residence, he chose the Benedictine Abbey of Notre - Dame du Groseau at the foot of Mont Ventoux. As he did in 1299 in Pessac near Bordeaux, Clement V planted vines in Le Groseau. This was the first pontifical vineyard, whose wines adorned the Pope's tables in Avignon. The young vine shoot Via Caritatis, which sprouted from the ancient papal vine, echoes the principal mission of the Pope, to preside over charity – præesse caritati. Today Via Caritatis is the way that enabled the small winegrowers of the mountains and the monks of Le Barroux to bring out together the best of their terroir, thus allowing the creative power of Charity to express itself in them, to enchant the world.

The monks chose to hold the mystery on these wines. What we can say is that these wines are made from the best plots of the monastic vineyard, cultivated only by the monks and nuns. The monks want these wines to be like the Gregorian chant: "to reach the purity of perfection with the minimum of means". Therefore, there is no wood, no barrels, nor technical processes for the vinification. It is the pure expression of fruits of excellent quality. SILENTIUM TIBI LAUS means "silence will be for you a praise". Hereafter is the comment of the monks for this wine: silence is the only nourishment with enough consistency and perfection to be paired with this wine that is composed like a Gregorian Chant to lead the souls to the eternal Silence where God words himself as a circulation of Trinitarian Love."

SPAIN

Abadía Retuerta

The Abbey of Saint Mary of Retuerta (Abadía de Santa María de Retuerta), located in the Castilla y León region of Spain, near the Duero River, was founded in 1146 for the Premonstratensian Order (Latin: Ordo Praemonstratensis, O.Praem.), also known as the Norbertines – members of the order established by Saint Norbert. The abbey was founded by Doña Mayor. She donated extensive lands and vineyards to the abbey, which were intended to ensure the self - sufficiency of the monastic community. Thanks to this foundation, Abadía de Santa María de Retuerta became an important center of agriculture and winemaking in the Duero Valley from its very beginnings. For nearly seven centuries, the Premonstratensian monks cultivated the viticultural traditions of this place – caring for the vineyards, developing their cultivation methods, and producing wine. Already in the 17th century, the wines of the Retuerta Abbey were highly valued throughout the Valladolid area. Today, the Abadía Retuerta winery builds its identity on this exceptional historical heritage – a history spanning almost 900 years, the winemaking tradition shaped by the Premonstratensian monks, and the respect for the landscape that has been carefully preserved since the 12th century.

Abadía Retuerta Pago Negralada Retuerta Abbey D.O. 2019 200 €

Tempranillo

Pago Negralada is one of the most exceptional and prestigious single vineyard wines of Abadía Retuerta. The name Pago Negralada has a special connection with the history of Abadía Retuerta: it combines the medieval concept of monastic land ownership with the modern tradition of Spain's highest-quality wines. This wine is produced exclusively from old Tempranillo vines, which, due to their naturally lower yields, produce a smaller quantity of grapes with exceptional concentration and complexity. These old vines provide the wine with remarkable aromatic intensity, deeper structure, refined tannins, and outstanding ageing potential. The wine is aged for 17 months in French oak barrels, allowing it to develop greater complexity while preserving the unique character of the vineyard. Pago Negralada is distinguished by its exceptional concentration, complexity, and longevity. Its aromatic profile reveals layers of ripe black fruits, spices, mineral notes, toasted oak, and subtle nuances of maturity. On the palate, the wine is deep, elegant, and structured, with remarkable balance, refined tannins, and a long, harmonious finish.

Historical sources state that in the end of XVIII c.-beginning of XIX c. about 300 fruit trees were already growing in the territory of the monastery, among which apples, pears, plums, and cherries predominated. Rare plants such as grapes and walnut are also mentioned. The monks grew flowers (peonies, lilies, roses), medicinal and spice plants near their houses, the sources of which mention over 40 species. And the founder's letters reveal the ambitious desires of the brothers to set up a conservatory for growing olive trees.

It is known that a beer brewery operated in the palace of the monastery, and original recipes for brewing and serving beer have survived. And the Kaunas County Archive also holds the oldest book of prescriptions for medicinal products in Lithuania - a manuscript in which prescriptions for balms, tinctures, emulsions, oil extracts and wine - based medicines are written in Latin. It is believed that in Pažaislis, as in many European monasteries, wine was pressed.

Respecting history and seeking to extend the traditions, we have found a reliable partner - the family winery "Roksala", where wines are made only from carefully selected fruits and berries grown in Lithuania in accordance with the traditions of old winemaking. For more than a month, not even for several years, we tasted the berries and fruits ripening in Pažaislis gardens together, analyzed the old recipes of the monks and created our own Pažaislis Monastery wine.

Touriga Nacional, Touriga Franca, Tinto Cao

A powerful wild aromatic nose, deep concentrated fruit, and a powerful, yet fine tannin structure makes this a remarkable Vintage Port, a true expression of the Quinta da Romaneira terroir. Will age for decades, but also hugely enjoyable in its youth while the flamboyant young fruit expresses the generous vigor of a great young Vintage Port.
